Thordibandis

Hello CAN u tell me ! There r a Lp and a CD? CAN u detail me the lp please ?Thanks lotJb
Goltizuru

There's no label on side B on my copy. Anyone else has this?

Vobei

I think its more for the completists and die hards. The box looks nice and is put together very well. But i think the price/quality is a little overdone. You get like 25 mins of music for a lot of money and to this day im not sure if the items in the box can make up for that. Id givd this release 2.5 * and the advice to only buy this if you are a real die hard doorsfan, otherwise: stick with the original albums and live albums.

Tat

This release is not worth the money in my opinion and that's coming from a lifelong huge doors fan..it is a cool to hear an early show but it's pretty lack luster and boring and the extras are pretty worthless besides the pictures I don't need a copy of a London fog coster or a crumbled up set list if this was released just on 10 inch or cd for 10 or 15 dollars it would be worth it but 50 dollar price tag it way to much for its musical value

Beanisend

Agreed. This should be priced closer to $25-30 for what it is. Great recording and a must have for big fans, but way to expensive.

shustrik

I agree that for the amount of music you get, it's an overpriced record. With that being said, I'm actually surprised they weren't charging more for it, and for hardcore doors fans they did a beautiful job with the packaging and the extras.

Anarahuginn

The eternal question...does anyone know how many "limited editions" there are?

Keramar

i thought about 10.000 copies were made of this release

Arakus

I have number 16,000 something, so not very limited it seems.

Xurad

HI, that is surprising how can you confirm that?

Flower

According to rhino.com, there are 18k total. So, if what rhino and thedoors.com are selling the same thing (which I think they are), then kschraser is correct. got mine last night and will be giving it a listen tonight:)<http://www.rhino.com/product/london-fog-1966>

Isha

I'm guessing it's limited to the number they can sell

Jesmi

From what I read, there are 18,000 pressed. Not so limited.

Nagis

Unclear how many were made, but as of this writing, Warner has less than 400 left.

AfinaS

This is a great release. It is much money and a fetishy object, but hearing it made money well spent.

Abuseyourdna

Does any one have an advance copy of this release?

Arashilkis

Sorry for replying this late... i got it a while back.. one or two weeks before christmas. I think its more for the completists and die hards. The box looks nice and is put together very well. But i think the price/quality is a little overdone. You get like 25 mins of music for a lot of money and to this day im not sure if the items in the box can make up for that. Id givd this release 2.5 * and the advice to only buy this if you are a real die hard doorsfan, otherwise: stick with the original albums and live albums.

Ricep

Hey yeah thanks, I do have it now. I was sceptical before but once I had it in my hands I thought it was pretty cool actually. Amazing to hear what do you make of it? did you get the entire box prior to release?

Funny duck

I have it, but you probably have one yourself by now.. but is there anything you like to know about the box?
